Library News

Tim Row recently gave the library the following DVDs:

-Set of six DVD's with 20 lessons entitled, DOES GOD EXIST? Presenter of these lessons is John Clayton, a public high school science teacher who was once an atheist, but came to believe in God through his studies in science.

-DVD of the film, The Case For A Creator, written by Lee Strobel. In this film, a journalist investigates scientific evidence that points toward God.

Thank you

"Dear Chase Park Family

Your kind gesture toward our family is deeply appreciated. The flowers, food, cards, and meal prepared following the service was very generous. In Christian love,"

The Lawson Family

A Brighter Light

In recent years, the traditional light bulb model that we had been accustomed to has been largely replaced by LED lights. LED's (light emitting diodes) are brighter, more efficient, and longer lasting than both incandescent and halogen bulbs which makes them the logical and popular choice for our homes, cars, flashlights, and just about any lighting need. But have you ever looked closely at an LED light? If you have, then you have probably noticed that an LED bulb of reasonable size is not made of one illuminating element but rather several light-producing diodes. Its brightness comes from the combined light of all the diodes. Together, they produce a light far brighter and more powerful than any one produces alone. We should learn from the LED light.

As Christians, we are called to let our lights shine in the world (Matthew 5:14-16). We each have a responsibility to do that individually within our own spheres of influence, but consider the lesson of the LED bulb. While we can each shine brightly for the glory of God, think about how much brighter and more powerful our combined light is within a community. When we come together to worship and serve God as a church, our light is magnified exponentially. When we work together in the Lord's kingdom, our ability to share the love of God and reach the lost is greatly increased. Think of the impact that could be made in this world for Christ if every Christian was letting their own light shine and was combining their light with that of every other Christian for the cause of Christ. What a difference we would make!

Given all of this, here are two questions for us all to consider. First, are you letting your light shine at work, in your neighborhood, and in the community? I hope that you are and I believe that you are because I know that the Chase Park family is filled with sincere, genuine, and devoted Christians. The second question may be a little tougher for some. Are you lending your light to the church as a whole so that we can have the greatest influence possible? You see, even if I am letting my light shine as brightly as possible individually, if I am not contributing to the shining light of the church, then I am keeping her from realizing her true potential. A church's light is only as bright as the combined lights of her members. So, keep shining and let's work to be a true and powerful beacon of light in this community as we serve God together to His glory.
